VAN DUYN OUT FOR STATE OFFICE

BLOOMFIELD PAPER ANNOUNCES CANDIDACY OF FORMER RESIDENT OF THAT CITY.

Edward W. Van Duyn has announced his candidacy for the office of secretary of state. The announcement was made by the Bloomfield Republican, which published the following sketch of Mr. Van Duyn:

The Republican indulges in a genuine editorial pleasure this week in presenting the name of Ed. Van Duyn, or secretary of state, subject to the will of the June primaries. It was a good fortune to meet Mr. Van Duyn shortly after coming to Bloomfield, for his worth have been strengthened in the succeeding years. His good qualities crop out at every meeting. The value of a man is evidenced by the impression left upon acquaintances and the real test comes when acquaintance passes to the degree of friendship. Van Duyn has stood the test. The verdict is state wide and for that reason he is climbing the ladder of success. He is big enough and broad enough to meet any emergency and his ability has been tried in many offices of responsibility. His campaign is meeting with hearty approval all over the state, and it should, for he is of the right sort.

He really belongs to Davis county, where he lived on a farm near Bloomfield for 23 years, received the better portion of his education in the "University of hard knocks"—a mighty good school to test the temper and fit a man for the higher walks of life. Van never knew the "primrose path," he toiled and found his reward in the paths of virtue. He came of fighting stock. Two brothers were soldiers in the civil war. Will O. died in a hospital in 1862, and J. N. served 'til the end. The memory of the career of these two brothers helped him in meeting the obstacles of life and spurred him on to the better and bigger things of life. The Republican wants to see "Van" in the chair of the office of secretary of state, because he deserves the place, is competent and will discharge the duties with credit to himself and honor to the state.

Ed. W. Van Duyn, whose announcement as a candidate for secretary of state, before the June primaries appears for the first time in this issue of our paper, was born in Davis county. He is a son of Daniel C. and Mary Van Duyn, late of Davis county, who were pioneers of Iowa, having settled here in 1850. Edward W. their youngest son, was born in a log cabin on the Van Duyn farm north of Bloomfield, January 20th, 1870, where he grew to manhood. He acquired his education in the common schools and the Southern Iowa normal at Bloomfield. He was married September 20th, 1892, to Clara C. Hedrick, the second daughter of our fellow townsman, Daniel Hedrick. Mr. Van Duyn moved from Davis county to Des Moines, Iowa, in August, 1902, for the purpose of securing medical treatment for his invalid wife. There he engaged in the contracting and building business, which he managed successfully for several years. In 1909 he was appointed commissioner of labor, by Governor B. F. Carroll. Under Mr. Van Duyn's administration the labor bureau, which has all of the factory inspection, safe-guarding of dangerous machinery, sanitary conditions, the enforcement of the child labor laws and the compilation of a very comprehensive report of the industrial work of the state, has been successfully and creditably managed by him, demonstrating beyond a question that he is a man of the highest type for a public official, and his splendid qualifications make him a formidable candidate for the office of secretary of state.

He belongs to the Masonic order, is a 32nd degree Mason and a Shriner, also a Modern Woodman, Yeoman, Homesteader, and a member of the Iowa State Traveling Men's association.

Clay street, returned home last night from Los Angeles, Cal., where they were called by the death of Mrs. O'Gar's father, George R. Peterson.

Republican Primary Announcements.

To the Republican Voters of Wapello County.

I desire to announce my candidacy for the nomination on the republican ticket for the office of representative for Wapello county in the thirty-fifth general assembly, subject to the June primary.

SOME RULES FOR JUDGING CORN

The man who is about to exhibit his best ten or forty or one hundred ears of corn ought to know how to judge it as well as the man who is to pass on it at the show. That is no easy task, because it requires a great deal of study and experience. Professor D. G. Holden of Iowa State College says that there are four fundamental questions which the exhibitor must ask himself when he selects his corn for show or seed, and they are these:

1. Will the corn yield, will it produce, has it constitution, vigor, hardiness? Among the things which go to indicate good yield are size, shape, solidity and weight of ear, depth of kernel, size of germ, fullness of tip, of kernel, etc.

2. Will it mature; i. e., will it ripen, not only this year, but every year in the region or district in which it is grown or entered for show? Immaturity will be indicated by too large an ear, too deep a kernel, sappiness, chaffiness, dull, starchy appearance, etc.

3. Will it grow; i. e., will it germinate, giving strong, vigorous plants which will stand unfavorable conditions in the spring and summer? Indications of good vitality are clear, clean, bright, smooth, horny kernels with large chits or hearts. It is a bad sign to find a germ pasty or cheesy in appearance or of a yellow or dark color. The best way to settle vitality is to test a few kernels from each ear in advance of show.

4. Does it show improvement? Has it years of careful selection or breeding behind it? Will it reproduce uniformly in type, in time of maturity, in size and shape of both ears and kernels?

TEST FORAGE CROP SEEDS.

The pure seed law in Iowa has brought about an improvement in the quality of seeds sold, but it is still important for Iowa farmers to test the quality of clover and other forage crop seeds they sow. Tests made at the Iowa Agricultural Experiment station since the law was passed, show that impurities are still found, though not in so large a proportion, as formerly.

An analysis of seeds may be made at home with a few such simple instruments as a hand magnifying glass and a toothpick. It takes some patience, but it is worth while to find out if the seed to be used is pure. Take small portions of seed from different parts of a considerable heap of the seed to be tested so as to get a representative sample. When a teaspoonful has been taken, an equivalent of about 5 grams, pour the whole sample on a smooth white surface and with the toothpick or other slender instrument and the hand magnifying glass sort out the clean seed from the weed seed. Then sort out the weed seeds and you can get an idea of the variety and amount of impurities. If there is any considerable amount, send a sample to the Iowa Experiment Station for further testing. The station will do it without charge.

The illustration above shows the commoner varieties of weed seeds found in red clover and other seeds.
